Weber at 29 East Second street. In taking charge of this plant Mrs. Breeze will endeavor to give the same courteous treatment and prompt service that has always marked this establishment. In connection with the dry cleaning business she will also carry a full line of samples of the latest fabrics and will take orders for men's and boy's suits and overcoats. She is an experienced woman along this line and deserves the patronage of those needing their suits or dresses dry cleaned or pressed. Give her a trial.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

HUGHES AND FAIRBANKS

Nominated To Head the Republican Party—Politics Is Given Up By Head of Bull Moose Party—Justice Hughes Leaves Supreme Court Bench.

Chicago, June 10.—It is a surprise in the phlegmatic, unemotional mental attitude that has marked with but few digressions its deliberations, the Republican National Convention today nominated Charles E. Hughes for President, and Charles Warren Fairbanks for Vice President.

The nominating ballot showed this count:

Presidential Ballot
Hughes	949 1/2
Itasca	18 1/2
Lodge	7
Du Pont	6
Weeks	3
La Follette	3
Absent	1
Total	987

The ballot for Vice President showed this count:

Vice Presidential Ballot
Fairbanks	863
Burkett	108
Borah	8
Webster	2
Burton	1
Johnson	1
Absent and not voting	6
Total	987

Mr. Hughes will be notified of his nomination officially at a date to be fixed later by a committee headed by Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, chairman of the convention. Mr. Fairbanks will be notified by a committee headed by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho.

At 2:01 p. m. the convention adjourned. There were expressions of harmony from all the leaders and among the delegates. The delegations which on the final ballot had cast votes for others than Mr. Hughes made statements declaring their loyalty to the nominees.

Notable in Political History
The convention was notable in political history for many things. A man who steadfastly had refused to accept the nomination had been chosen; it left a new milestone in the path of both the Republican and Progressive parties; it was the first Republican Convention since 1888 which had been forced to take more than one ballot to agree upon a candidate, and it has been marked by a lack of riotous demonstration and nervous enthusiasm which hitherto has been a feature of such gatherings.

It did not touch any of the existing records for sustained demonstrations, but despite the fact that in political vernacular it was wholly and decidedly "unbossed," it moved with a precision and quietness which has not been equaled since the McKinley convention in Philadelphia.

Roosevelt's Message Is Blaw to Bull Moose.

Chicago, June 10.—By an unanimous vote the Progressive National Convention extended the presidential nomination to Theodore Roosevelt, of Oyster Bay, at 12:31 o'clock today.

In a short, crisp statement Roosevelt practically handed it back to the convention at 5 minutes before 5 o'clock this afternoon, the hour fixed for the final adjournment.

Determined to nominate Roosevelt and not knowing whether he would accept the honor the last day of the Progressive convention was filled with dread, anxiety and excitement. When the almost fearful words of the great leader of the cause were read the Moose herd was limp and downhearted. It had discovered that it is one thing to extend a presidential nomination and another to make it stick.

Roosevelt's Answer
Chicago, Ill., June 10.—Colonel Roosevelt's answer to the Progressive Convention follows:

"To the Progressive Convention: I am very grateful for the honor you confer upon me by nominating me as President. I cannot accept at this time. I do not know the attitude of the candidate of the Republican party toward the vital questions of the day.

"Therefore, if you desire an immediate decision, I must decline the nomination. But if you prefer it, I suggest that my conditional refusal to run be placed in the hands of the Progressive National Committee.

"If Mr. Hughes's statements, when he makes them, shall satisfy the committee that it is for the interest of the country that he be elected, they can act accordingly and treat my refusal as definitely accepted.

"If they are not satisfied, they can so notify the Progressive party, and at the same time, they can confer with me and then determine on whatever action we may severally deem to be appropriate to meet the needs of the country."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Hughes Steps Down From Supreme Court Bench
Washington, June 10.—Charles Evans Hughes stepped down from the Supreme bench and, again a private citizen, accepted the Republican nomination for President. In a telegram ringing with denunciation of the Administration's foreign policies and declaring for a dominant, thorough-going Americanism, he gave his decision to Chairman Harding, of the Republican National Convention, and broke the long silence which had kept the leaders of his party in the dark as to his attitude toward the great issues of the day.

Washington, June 10.—Justice Hughes's letter of resignation, sent to the White House by messenger, contained one brief sentence. It said: "June 10, 1916."

"To the President:
"I hereby resign the office of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.
"I am, sir, respectfully yours,
"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

The Mason County Sunday School Association met Sunday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church. The resignation of Mr. T. J. Curry as County Superintendent was received and accepted. SHOOTING SCRAPE

Caused by an Argument Over a Suitcase of Whiskey—One Man Seriously Injured.

An argument over a suitcase of whiskey caused a shooting match between Green Meadows and George Bradford near the L. & N. Roundhouse Sunday afternoon and Meadows was seriously injured.

Together with ten or twelve other men Meadows and Bradford had been shooting craps. This finished they began to quarrel over a suitcase of whiskey. Meadows it is claimed drew a revolver and fired at Bradford without hitting him. Bradford then left going to the home of a friend in Clifton borrowed a shotgun for the purpose of killing a groundhog as he said. Returning to the L. & N. tracks he met Meadows and fired both barrels of the shotgun at him, the loads taking effect in Meadows' left shoulder and breast.

After the shooting Bradford made very little effort to escape and was captured by Chief of Police James Mackey on Wood street. He was taken to the county jail and will be tried before County Judge W. H. Rice this afternoon.

Meadows was removed to his home in Morrison Alley, his wounds being dressed by Drs. Howard and Harover. He was in a very serious condition an several of the shot are thought to have entered near the heart. He is a middle aged man and has been working with the Street Car Company. He is married and has several children.

CUTICLE AND CONSCIOUSNESS

President Wilson made a speech at a Washington club the other evening and from a report of his language as published in a Washington newspaper we are enabled to catch a glimpse of the workings of the Wilsonian mind. Mr. Wilson said that, from his prior experience—evidently referring to his career as a schoolmaster—he had learned that the most direct approach to a boy's consciousness lies through his cuticle. In other words, if you want to influence a boy, spank him. This practice the President heartily approves of. He has tried to apply it to Congress, with only measurable success, and Congress is very tired of it. In some instances Congressmen have successfully revolted against the schoolmaster's birch. They did it in the case of the Philippines bill, in the case of Rublee, and they plan to repeat the process with Brandeis.

There are others beside schoolboys and Congressmen to whom this practice of birching is likewise applicable. Even Presidents are not sacrosanct in regard to it, as Mr. Wilson will learn before long. In the past three years many attempts have been made to approach his consciousness. Reputable business men have gone to Washington, thinking that out of their experience they could tell him something enlightening to his inexperience. They have been met with the assertion on that they are corrupt and insidious lobbyists. Senators and Representatives have gone to the White House trying to tell the President what Congress thinks about different matters. They have gone away with the executive expletives wounding their sensibilities and shattering their egos. These incidents are numerous—and it is now evident that the only approach to the Presidential consciousness is by way of his cuticle. Mops are being made for utilizing that approach.

FEEDING FOR WINTER EGGS

It is Never Advisable to Feed Heavily During Early Hours of Day—Keep the Hens Scratching.

In feeding poultry, it is never advisable to feed heavily during the early hours of the day. A hen gorged with food early in the morning will have no incentive to exercise—will lay around the roosting quarters and take on fat. In feeding for winter eggs the appetites of the hens should never be fully satisfied until just before they go to roost at night.

During the winter months I always feed the first food of the day in deep litter, says a writer in an exchange. The scratch grain is composed of equal parts whole wheat and cracked corn. A mash food is never fed early in the morning for the reason that it fully satisfies the appetites of the hens and they will not work diligently in the litter. The wet mash is fed at noon or shortly thereafter. The mash is composed of two parts bran, one part each of middlings, cornmeal, cut clover, beef scrap and ground oats, with the hulls sifted out. The hens are given all they will eat of this mash. If any is left after the hens are through feeding, it is removed and given to the hogs. About an hour before dark the hens are given all they will eat of whole corn and wheat and sent to bed with full crops. Grit, charcoal and oyster-shell are kept before them all the time.

KEEP LITTLE PIGS GROWING

Eastern Breeder Describes Plan of Weaning Youngsters—First Give Oats and Milk.

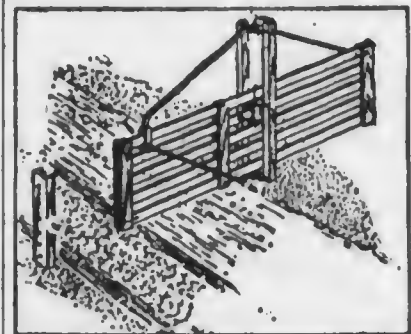

To keep pigs growing properly they should have as little set-back at weaning as possible. This is the way that an eastern breeder describes his system:

"Before my pigs are weaned I teach them to eat and they are ready and eager for their meals when they are weaned. I first give them oats and milk, putting the oats in a trough, pouring the milk over them so they cannot get too much milk at one time. If I am short on milk, I put oil meal and middlings in milk and pour it on the oats. This plan starts the pigs eating while they are still suckling their mother and it is the best feed I have used for this purpose. As they get older I feed oats separately and make slop of oil meal one quart, middlings three gallons, milk and water 20 gallons. Then put 20 pounds of dry bran in the troughs and pour on the slop and turn them in. Give them only enough so they will clean it up well as if they wanted a little more. This keeps their appetite just sharp enough. A little corn is fed also and at eight months old these pigs will make as good as you will find."

PRACTICAL GATES FOR FARM

One Recently Invented by California Man—Device is Mounted in Space Between Two Posts.

Practical farm gates are always worth a second thought. Here is one recently patented by a California man. There is a keeper post and a pair of spaced diagonally offset posts, the gate being mounted in the space between the posts. Brackets connecting the posts are disposed at the ends and center of the lengths of the posts, a stirrup being pivoted to the central bracket between the ends of this and straddling one of the gate rails and having a roller connected at its free end, on which the gate rail rides, to support the gate against downward movement. An upper and lower bar is used as a hanger for this gate, this having a roller at the front end, which rides on the rail. The two pivotal points of hanger and the pivotal point of the stirrup are disposed in the same vertical plane.—Farming Business.

SPREADING STRAW ON FIELDS

Helps Prevent Soil Blowing and Affords Protection for Crops—Adds Needed Humus.

Where straw is present in such quantities that it cannot be worked over by live stock it can be spread directly on the fields.

It helps to prevent soil blowing and serves as a winter protection for the crop. As it gradually decays it becomes a part of the soil in the form of humus or decaying organic material.

The scattering of the old straw stacks found on the big wheat farms will pay well for the labor expended. Now that special straw spreaders have been constructed it is not such a big task to spread the straw produced.

Scientific Farming. No farming is scientific and progressive that is not practical. The most practical farmer is the most progressive farmer, and the most progressive farmer is the most scientific.

EDISON SLEEPS 19 HOURS IN 19 DAYS

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)
Orange, N. J., May 20—A gray-haired, slightly stooping man punched a time clock at 6:24 a. m. today and began his 19th hour of labor since Monday.

The man was Thomas A. Edison, world's most famous electrical wizard. He has been on another sleepless jag, up to 6 o'clock tonight 116 hours work and sixteen hours sleep in six days since Monday morning.

In the last eighteen days he has had nineteen hours sleep and tonight there was every indication that he would work in his laboratory until the wee hours of tomorrow.

Edison is trying to ferret out one of the countless problems of his inventions. Nobody in the laboratory knows exactly what it is, but the fact that during the past eighteen days the inventor has broken all his previous records for sleeplessness indicates that it must be something big.

Thomas A. Edison holds card No. 1 of the thousands of employees in his plants here. Every time he enters his laboratory and every time he leaves he religiously punches his card in the big recording clock and files the card away on the rack.

His old card got so cluttered up with times on and off that it was changed Thursday. The record since then, however, shows:

No. 1—Thomas A. Edison.
Friday, May 19th—Off 1 a. m., on 6:32 a. m.

Saturday, May 20th—Off 12:28 a. m. on 6:24 a. m.

It was Edison who years ago announced that four hours sleep a night was plenty for any man of mental vigor—and ever since then he has been proving his maxim.

The work done by Mr. Edison as mentioned in the above item was upon an improvement in the Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph. J. T. Mackley & Co. are the local distributors for this instrument.

SMALL MILK PRODUCERS GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

Adverse conditions to small dairying projects are driving the little producers out of business according to Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published in Springfield, Ohio.

"The farmer who produces the milk has been getting the bad end of the transaction. He has been the victim of a good deal of nonsensical doubt and inspection. Without doubt, the consumer has profited in the improvement of milk, but he has paid enough more for the added quality to justify the farmer in expecting a better price for his product.

"The consumer is paying about twice as much for milk as the farmer gets speaking, shows no advance commensurate with the increase in the cost of production. We hear a lot about the increased cost of living nowadays; it is increasing for many as well as for the rest of us.

"Officials of both of the federal and the state dairy departments have been started at the number of small milk producers who are going out of the business. Only a few years ago a large proportion of farmers kept from a half dozen to a dozen milk cows because they afforded a steady cash income month by month."

JEW IN AMERICAN POLITICS

(Washington Post)

"Although Mr. Brandeis is the first Hebrew to occupy a seat on the Supreme bench of this country there has never been a long period in our history marked by the absence of some member of that wonderful race from high governmental positions," said W. H. David, of the New Orleans bar, at the Willard.

"One of the greatest statesmen the South ever produced was Judah P. Benjamin, of Louisiana, who was a United States Senator, later on a member of the Confederate Cabinet, and after the defeat of the South one of the leading lawyers of England. Fleeing from the anticipated wrath of the United States Government, he made his way to London, and there by the sheer force of native talent and legal ability he was appointed Queen's counsel. In recent years Louisiana sent another Jew to the United States Senate in the person of Mr. Jonas, and it has not been so long ago that the State of Oregon was represented in the United States by Mr. Simon. Recollection of Senator Guggenheim, of Colorado, is still fresh in the public mind, and a cleverer business man probably never came to Washington.

"Any number of Jews have been elected to seats in Congress, and there was never a dullard in the lot.

"The elevation of Mr. Brandeis, of course, meets the hearty commendation of those of his own nationality, and it is also pleasing to broad-minded and tolerant people everywhere."

Age may not be garrulous, but it is sure to tell on a woman sooner or later.

Remember, that the money you intend to save doesn't draw any interest.

WHERE REASON RULES

By HOPE AINSLIE.

"It's just this way, Uncle Ted. There's a girl up home, Betty Roberts, and we used to be rather sweet on each other. We both went to the same church and the academy, and I suppose I did write letters to her, and so on when I was seventeen or around there. Mother likes her and she's always said I'd marry Betty. Last year I went after that concession and met Mrs. Leonard. She loaned her collection of Chinese porcelains to the exhibit and I give you my word, Uncle Ted, from the instant we looked at each other I didn't give a rap whether I ever saw Betty or any other woman as long as I lived."

"Good looking, Jack?"

"She's just divine." Jack spoke fervently, reverently. "She's been a widow for four years; married at nineteen to a brute."

"All good-looking widows' husbands were brutes," murmured the major. "Go on."

"That's all. I told her I loved her and she was giving me at least a chance until mother came out to Frisco and quered the whole thing. She met Mrs. Leonard at Aunt Anna's, and told her I was an impressionable boy, a perfect slave to sympathy and all that rot, always used to being petted, etc. Finally showed her Betty's picture as the little girl sweetheart back East waiting for me to get through my travels. You know the way she can put a thing over with that tone of her voice and her eyes. Well, I didn't have a chance after she had left. Dolores left for Santa Barbara the next day."

"Humph," mused the major. "Now she comes here. Did she know you were with me at the Springs?"

"No, sir. We haven't written."

"Well, I don't blame you, mind, Jackie. She's a wonderfully attractive woman. And you're twenty-six, you know, old enough to toddle without the maternal apron strings. I should say, Lucia is a fine woman, good sister to me, but still—what's this Betty like?"

"Oh, she's all right," said Jack vaguely.

"There goes the widow," said the major, suddenly leaning forward. "Gad, she can ride!"

Jack vaulted the veranda rail and made for the mounting stone to meet the chestnut mare as she galloped up the shore road. His voice was a bit husky when he spoke to Mrs. Leonard, slim and erect in her black habit, her hair wind-blown around her face, her eyes dark and evasive as he leaned toward her.

"Don't go in yet," he begged as the boy took the bridle. "I must speak to you. You've avoided me ever since you found I was here. Dolores—"

"Hush, Jack. Someone will hear you, you foolish boy—"

"Don't call me a boy," he swung back miserably. "I'm not. Come along the pine road just a little way. You wouldn't speak to me hardly at lunch. I know you were sorry even to see me here—"

"Oh, no, I was not. It was a pleasant surprise, really it was, Jack."

"A pleasant surprise. It made me perfectly mad to see you again—"

"The train service to Santa Barbara is quite regular," she said demurely.

"You wouldn't have seen me. You left without a word. You believed every last thing mother told you about me and Betty."

"Did I?"

"You cared, didn't you? Even though you went away. Never mind Betty, I haven't thought of anyone in the world but you for the last six months. Uncle Ted took me under his wing and brought me South because I wasn't fit for anything else."

She smiled, leaning forward as he crushed her hands in his, and quoted softly under her breath—

"I had not dreamt that love would stay. Yet here he lingers many a day."

"Don't go away from me again, Dolores. I swear I'll follow you this time to the ends of the world—"

She laughed, her eyes brimful of tenderness.

"Oh, Jack, Jack, why didn't you follow me then if you really cared."

The major came leisurely toward them, the late afternoon mail in his hands.

"By George, Jack boy, here's news. Good afternoon, Mrs. Leonard. Betty Roberts eloped with Batcheller Phillips Saturday."

"I know Betty," said Dolores gently. "We are distant cousins, but she writes to me."

"Yes! Writes to Jack, too, I should say. Here's one with a return line on it, 'Mrs. Batcheller Phillips, Washington, D. C., Hotel Grover.' Break the news to us, Jackie!"

Jack opened the letter with a frown, and then smiled. He handed it to Dolores. It was typically Betty.

Dear Jack: I know what everybody'll say, and I don't care. I've always liked Betty and I'd like to know why I can't marry him if I want to. So we're eloping. I'm just as sick and tired as you are of forever being buried at your head. I've written Dolores—she's my cousin. I wish you all kinds of luck. Happily,

BETTY.

Jack's shoulders unconsciously straightened. He turned resolutely to the major.

"Uncle Ted, I'd like to have you know it first that Dolores and I are engaged," he said. "God bless Betty." (Copyright, 1910, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She is indeed a wise woman who knows when to stop talking and turns on the flow of tears.

Even a sickly grin is more to be desired than a snarl.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" COMING TO THE WASHINGTON THEATER

Scene of Lincoln and His Cabinet in "The Birth of a Nation" at the Washington Theater Next Friday and Saturday.

Joseph Henahery, the actor who portrays President Lincoln in D. W. Griffith's historical spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation", was selected from twenty players who were coached and prepared for the part before the choice was made. Mr. Lincoln's appearance and mannerisms were carefully counterfeited, even to the small, but interesting, detail of the President reaching back for his shawl just a few minutes before Wilkes Booth attacked him. It was a Spring day in Washington—April 14, 1865—but a late frost had set in that night and it was cold. Mr. Lincoln felt the chill and drew the shawl around him.

LET U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE TELL YOU WHAT CROPS TO PLANT

Farm and Fireside tells us that the U. S. Department of Agriculture is prepared through its Office of Markets to give information concerning perishable crops. Branch offices have been established in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, and Kansas City. Government representatives are also located in the trucking sections of Florida, Louisiana, and Texas.

"The reports deal with shipments, receipts, and general conditions of such perishable crops as onions, tomatoes, and strawberries," this paper tells us. "Altogether sixteen crops are to be included in the reports. To all who will pay telegraph charges the information will be sent by wire; to others the information will be mailed. The chief object of the service, which began in March, is to prevent the glutting of markets. Applications for the service and inquiries for further particulars may be addressed to the Office of Markets, Washington, D. C."

THE NATIONAL SHAME

To find a fitting parallel to the shamelessness of the House of Representatives in refusing to accept the Senate military bill and take the long-needed steps toward adequate preparedness one must go back to the dark and ugly days immediately preceding the outbreak of the Civil War. For the refusal of the House to compromise with the Senate resembles in spirit, if not in detail, the traitorous action of those who, before Fort Sumter was fired upon and while they were still in the service of the Federal Government, did everything they knew how to demoralize its organized forces in the interest of a cause hostile to the central Government and the safety of the nation as a whole.

In the face of what is happening in Mexico and along the border, what kind of Bourgeoisism run mad is it that guides the party in power and leads to such fatality as that now exhibited in the House?

There is a time when even words fail and logical criticism is powerless. How can one fathom minds so darkened, so "clouded, cribbed, confined," so narrow, that none of the ordinary appeals to reason will avail? And so it is with this incredibly stupid anti-military feeling that Mr. Hay and his "cousins" are indulging in Nero fiddling when Rome burned was a parallel compared with the actual and real perils in the House, who after the "States' right" graft of $48,000,000 for an inefficient militia and are nothing for the only military preparedness that experts have told them is worth while. Such blind leaders of the blind represent nothing but their own prejudices. It is a pity, with all the craze for referendums and recalls, that there is not some mechanism by which the country could express its indignation and the contempt today, sweep them all out and put none but Americans on guard in the House and in the Senate, as well as on the borders and in the field—Philadelphia Ledger.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE AL- MOST ELIMINATED

In Farm and Fireside we read that American stockmen are breathing freely for practically the first time in eighteen months.

"Since October 15, 1914, foot-and-mouth disease has been a blighting reality to thousands whose herds were stricken and a nightmare to other thousands expecting this plague upon the epidemic, 22 States, including 269 counties and the District of Columbia, were under federal quarantine. The stamping out of this most infectious of animal diseases from nearly half the States in the Union in a year and a half marks another convincing accomplishment to the credit of Uncle Sam.

"Denmark, with an area of half that of Indiana, tackled the same job about the time we did, but there the end of the fight is not yet in sight.

"It is the ravings of a few muckrakers who have been listened to and government quarantine and slaughter measures had been relaxed at their behest, the contagion of foot-and-mouth disease would now be lurking on practically every farm containing cloven-footed animals in this country. We shall not hear so much about 'Down with the slaughter policy!' in future epidemic."

DURING THUNDERSTORMS

(Country Gentleman)

Do not use the telephone. The telephone wires may receive a heavy charge.

Keep away from stoves, radiators and the like. They are large metallic masses, likely to become heavily charged.

Avoid screen doors or other metallic bodies connecting with the exterior of the building.

Keep away from chimneys and open screened windows.

Out of doors the most dangerous places are under isolated trees and near wire fences in open fields.

Small sheds and other shelters are dangerous if isolated from larger buildings.

Thick timber is undoubtedly the safest place to seek out of doors, since a single tree in a forest is not so likely to receive a stroke as a single person or an object in an open space of equal area.

HOW JAPS DODGE GRIP

(Chicago Journal)

Polite Japanese never have the grip because they commit "iki wo hik," that is, drawing in their breath sharply, a salutary custom which one doctor has declared incomparable as a means of grip prevention, the idea being that Japanese are careful as to where and on whom they breathe, and so keep the percentage of germ distribution at a rather respectably low figure.

IMPORTS IN WAR AND IN PEACE

(From the Washington Times)

Let no thoughtful American miss the true significance of our foreign trade in its trend of recent months. The marvelous thing has ceased to be our exports, prodigious as they are; it has become our imports.

Our sales to foreigners are not growing and they will not grow so fast as the sales of foreigners to us are growing and will grow. Those are the danger signals ahead.

In March we had imports of $214,000,000. This is $31,500,000 more than the imports of March, 1914, before the war and immediately after Mr. Wilson's administration and Mr. Wilson's Congress had thrown open our tariff flood gates. It is nearly $59,000,000 more than in the March of 1913, when Mr. Wilson went into the White House. It is $74,000,000 more than in March, 1912. It is $31,000,000 more than in March, 1909. It is $125,000,000 more than in March, 1908.

There is the true story of what our imports are doing—doing in spite of the fact that Germany and Austria are shut out of our markets by the battle fleets of the allies; that France and Belgium and even Great Britain are partly shut out of our markets by their own reduced productive capacity.

With all those nations selling us as they can sell us and will sell us after the war, there is scarcely any conceivable limit which one can put upon our imports then, so far as foreign sellers are concerned.

This country needs preparedness in many ways having to do with actual and possible war. But this country needs nothing more on earth than to do with the industrial invasion which will overwhelm us in the days of peace.

TWO SILVER TONGUES

(Wall Street Journal)

Ex-President Taft, who presided at the Lake Mohonk Arbitration Conference, paid a peculiarly graceful compliment to the man he defeated in 1908. Mr. Bryan arrived on the second morning of the conference unexpectedly, but was willingly granted three quarters of an hour for an address at the evening session. He was introduced by Mr. Taft quite simply, as "Mr. William Jennings Bryan, ex-Secretary of State."

After Mr. Bryan had been speaking for more than his allotted space, he turned to the Chairman and asked if he was exceeding his time. Mr. Taft, with that fine smile of his, and his simple and unaffected manner, said: "I have been following you, and not the time." The audience loudly applauded the graceful and generous courtesy, which Mr. Bryan also seemed to feel deeply.

NOW THE HOGS DO THE WORK

"Many hogs are fattened now with the aid of self feeders," says Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published in Springfield, Ohio. "The corn, tankage, and oil meal is placed in a self-feeder. The hogs eat at will. In experiments conducted at the Iowa Experiment Station it was found that the self-fed hogs made greater and cheaper gains than the man-fed hogs. This shows that the hog will eat the proper amount and kinds of feed for its best growth and fattening if given the opportunity."

SCENE OF GREAT SEA FIGHT

Washington — The scene of the greatest naval battle in modern history is the subject of a war geography bulletin issued today by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters, which says:

"When the high sea fleet of the German Empire and the prize fighting ships of the nation which boasts the greatest naval strength in the world met in an epochal battle off the coast of Jutland on the last night of May a section of North Sea waters was made famous for all time. The scene of this great struggle of steel leviathans is described in early dispatches as lying 120 miles off the west coast, that arm of the North Sea known as Skagerrack, which separates the southern end of Norway from the mainland portion of Denmark. At this point the breadth of Skagerrack is 80 miles, and its length, to the northeast is 150 miles. Together with the Kattegat and The Sound it forms the connecting channel between the North and Baltic Seas.

"If the great clash occurred 120 miles directly west of Hamilton, the British and German warships now lie in many fathoms of water, a little more than two hundred miles from Peterhead, the nearest point on the Scotch coast, and about four hundred miles northeast of Yarmouth. It is in this latitude that the North Sea floor begins to drop rapidly. The depth on the Dogger Bank, 150 miles to the south, is not more than 10 fathoms, but as the coast of Norway is approached the soundings show a remarkable increase until the gully of the Norwegian Channel is reached, where the depth exceeds 400 fathoms.

"The scene of this great sea fight will recall to British minds the battle of Copenhagen, which occurred 200 miles, in an airline, southeast of Hantsholm. It was in that conflict that the second command, Nelson, then a vice-admiral, won added fame by disobeying the orders of his superior, Sir Hyde Parker. When the latter signaled to the hero of Battle of the Nile to withdraw, Nelson placed his telescope to his blind eye and remarked to the officers grouped about him: 'I cannot see it.'

"Before the war these battlewaters were the congregating place of the greatest fishing fleets in the world. In 1913 the catch in these waters reached the amazing total of a million and a quarter tons of fish, a quantity so vast that its significance can only be grasped by a mental picture of thirty-foot trucks lined up in procession from New York to San Francisco, via New Orleans, each truck being loaded with two tons of seafood.

"With the payment of this vast annual toll, however, there seemed to be no diminution in the North Sea's fish supply. England's share of this food before the war was 500,000 tons a year, or 22 pounds for every inhabitant of the British Isles.

"Of the North Sea catch three-fifths of the total is herring, the fish whose spawning and feeding grounds have determined the location of cities, and in several instances appear to have involved the actual destiny of nations and the fate of their monarchs."

There is no place like home, but there's no excuse for loafing around there instead of going out and hunting for a job.

BANQUET

Friday Night Closed Another Year of Successful Work at the Maysville High School—Four Graduates This Year.

The annual commencement festivities of the Maysville High School closed Friday night with a banquet given by the alumni in honor of the graduating class of 1916. The tables, arrayed in the form of a swastika, were set for forty in the large auditorium. A very attractive program of toasts was given, Miss Elizabeth Roff acting as toastmistress. The idea of an encampment was carried out, the Alumni Association being the Grand Army and the graduating class being the six battalions that make it up. The 1916 class colors, pink and green, were used in the decorations and refreshments. The singing of the familiar and appropriate songs helped to make the occasion a joyful one. After the banquet the guests engaged in playing progressive euchre.

The outgoing class of 1916 consists of four members, Wilburn Spencer, Theresa Hall, French Martin and Sue Marshall Fox. This has always been an exceptionally bright class as all can testify who heard their brilliant and witty addresses on class night. This makes in the six years that Maysville has had her High School twenty-four graduates.

The commencement play, "The Hoodoo" was a tremendous success and for the benefit of those who were turned away from the doors, will be presented again under its able director, Prof. E. L. Dix on Thursday evening, June 15th. Those who witnessed the play declare it to have a genuine all star cast, with Wilburn Spencer as Billy Jackson, the flirt, Rose Marie Thompson as Professor Spiggott and Sarah Metcalfe Piper as old Aunt Paradise, the darkey shinning out for excellence.

WILLIAM DAWSON

William Dawson was left a small fortune. He began to live magnificently. He had no idea until he came into his fortune how many friends he had. In a few years time he had accumulated considerable debts. He and his friends had literally eaten up his fortune. He had no idea how few friends he had until he had spent his fortune. If you have a small fortune keep it at this Bank and as long as you do so the world will go well with you and you will have a host of friends.

Every time you yield to the temptation to spend a dollar you weaken your will to bank a dollar.

Strawberry Short Cake Suggestion

Appetizing—Delicious
Take one of Stone's Silver Slices Cakes, split it lengthwise and fill with full-ripe, luscious berries—the result will be a revelation to you.

We have tried it and find that Silver Slice lends itself perfectly for use with any strawberry combination. The flavors blend nicely and the contrast of color is most pleasing and tempting.
